

IDS 2009 ASM:

'Responsible Prescribing: Setting the Targets'

The Infectious Diseases Society of Ireland (IDS) Organising Committee is pleased to announce that the IDS 2009 annual scientific meeting will take place from June 11-12 in The Great Room in Dublin.

Building on the success of last year's inaugural meeting, we expect more than 200 delegates - specialists and those from general practice - to attend and participate in discussions on key topics including clinical infectious diseases, public health and antimicrobial stewardship.

As well as presentations from a panel of renowned international infectious disease experts, the meeting will involve symposia, poster sessions, case presentations and an exhibition hall.

For further information about the meeting, including the preliminary programme, please visit www.idsi2009.com

Call for Abstracts

Online abstract submission is now open! For the chance to present your work as an oral or poster presentation at the meeting, submit your abstract here.

Invitation to Attend

Online registration is also now open. To join colleagues from clinical and basic science disciplines with an interest in the treatment and prevention of infectious diseases, register here.

Please feel free to forward this e-mail to any friends or colleagues who would be interested in the IDS 2009 annual scientific meeting.

We look forward to welcoming you in June.

If you would rather not receive future e-mails regarding the IDS annual scientific meeting, please click here.